ADVANTAGES OF WORKING ON VOCABULARY IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL NATIVE LANGUAGE AND READING LITERACY CLASSES

Ergashaliyeva Gulsanam,
2nd year master's degree from Tashkent Chemical International University

Annotation: In this article, one of the necessary factors in the development of creative thinking and speech of students is working with dictionaries; theoretical information is given about the ability of dictionaries to express the creative thinking of students, the level of independent thinking, the product of creative thinking in oral and written forms.

Key words: dictionary, lexicology, synonym dictionaries, Uzbek linguistics, dictionary academy, explanatory dictionary of the Uzbek language, high intellectual and spiritual potential.

President Of Our Country Sh.M.Mirziyoyev said that ” our young people have independent thinking, high intellectual and spiritual potential and will be able to grow up to their peers on a global scale as people who do not empty themselves in any field, to be happy, mobilize all the strength and capabilities of our state and society, " calling for a qualitative and effective organization of education, especially, upbringing as a person with high intellectual and spiritual potential is one of the pressing issues of today.

Enrichment of the vocabulary of the mother tongue, reading children in the curriculum of primary classes. It is said that the cultivation of bound speech, the maturation of literary and aesthetic thinking, the formation of a culture of speech, is an important factor in ensuring the effectiveness of speech. These tasks are performed through the study of grammatical topics, observation and analysis of exercise texts, special vocabulary-grammatical exercises. The main goal of teaching the mother tongue is also determined by the role, function of the language in society. Language means of communication – the speaker expresses his thoughts through language, while the listener refers to the thought that came out to the ruyob through language tools. The subject of the mother tongue prepares teachers for the activities of explaining the idea and reading it. As the idea goes to ruyob by means of language, it is necessary for everyone to know the language and its use. Knowledge of the language is not only to master the rules, definition of its grammar – law, but also to be able to make practical use of the rich possibilities of the native language, that is, to be able to express its opinion correctly, comprehensively and competently in oral and written form. To achieve this, special attention should be paid to working on vocabulary in the dasrs of the native language.

In the work of the dictionary, the pronunciation and spelling of the meaning of the word are taken into account. The main goal of working on these is to achieve students ' use in speech when the need arises, to ensure that others have an understanding of their speech. To do this, it is necessary to determine which of each words the teacher uses in his native language lessons, in educational processes: excursion, mutual conversation, at various events, with an emphasis on the meaning of the words used, which of them dictates special work.

In order for the vocabulary of the language to be assimilated by students, the following meanings of words are introduced in the lessons of the native language.

1. Introducing readers to unfamiliar words and phrases.

It may be the first time students come across words and phrases in a textbook. This word is considered a new word for the reader, which means that the reader does not know its meaning, even if it is not a new word. For example, in the 1st grade textbook "mother tongue", Khabib (friend) is shown in darpar (a window curtain with transparent paper glued instead of a mirror), (proud (stuttering, proud-humble), mature (mature in all respects, full, finding perfection-khazon be), desolate (undressed vayrona), fraternal (friend, brother, relative-seed), Noble (together in the military service, together in the organization), khavza (a picture of the streams and lakes, the sarkarda (commander, Army officer), Zeb (decoration, embroidery, Husn), ornament (beauty-serving item, they come across words like Castle (noble palace, Koshk). It is possible to interpret the meaning of such words with counter-meaningful words by raising synonyms and expanding, to solve the meaning by making a sentence, to form a concept through pictures. Such performance creates sensitivity to word meanings in readers.

2. Introducing readers to new meanings of the word. Students may not have a different meaning if they understand one meaning of the plural. Children cannot master all the meanings of words at once. Mastering the meaning of their phase, which is carried out continuously. In Class 1-2, one or two connotations of the plural are introduced, while in classes 3-4, one learns another meaning. In the process of studying all levels of the language: phonetics, lexicon, word composition, morphology, syntax (in the elementary class, these sections are called "Sounds and letters", "word", "sentence", "connected speech"), the meanings of pictorial expressions, expressions, meaning, formative, oppositely meaningful words are explained on the basis of various types of work. In the 1st grade native language textbook, the idea is given a distorted-portable meaning phrase, compare it with a distorted combination of hours. Which compound is used in a different sense? (clock is defective) which compound is used in a different sense? (opinion is distorted). What is the meaning of the idea corrupted combination? Children are interpreted as thinking and saying that those whose intentions are bad are distorted by their opinion. It seems that the method of comparison is considered an effective method in interpreting word meanings. The servant shot, ate a reprimand, played his eyes, found a fire, a tongue in his heart, and his pleasure is worked in this way on the meaning of totdi's phrases.

In the 1st grade textbook Khiva mother history tilmochi,...with the owner, we stopped to follow the path of war, if we give our meaning, I will come to rediska as a brother, a caravan (cranes), a smile ran to the cheek, spring led a white cloud, in the 2nd grade textbook the hair-beard of the Dove-tree was shaved.

Working on artistic-pictorial language tools like the trees we justified wore white socks encourages the reader to become a jeweler who applies it to the language dice.

3. Work on the meaning of words that are little used in the language of students. Some words of literary language are rarely used in readers ' speech. The meaning of this word is not sufficiently understood by the reader. In his place, he uses simple words. It is necessary to create a situation in which the teacher forces him to apply them in his speech in order to replace them with biblical words, to create a need. For example, silent-calm,-leisurely, from the heart-from the heart, the clock arrow-miles, - paprika-like pepper, minute-by-minute, rayon-like fog. It was noted that even when written work is being carried out to faoalize the use of words, the attention of readers is replaced by some words with another. For example, in the 1st grade, students who compose an oral story based on pictures are required to have one of the elements of speech different from the other-one not returning the other's word. For example, in the place of the word shirinsuhan, shirinsuz, nasim-Tongi Yale (wind), scolded –gave a dashnom, zilal water-clear water, small mojaz, tik-adl, elegant-thin, businessman –like the one who knows the eye of work...

Even in the process of preparing for writing a written statement (2nd grade), it is necessary to pay attention to the replacement of words with another, the choice of biblical words. Textbooks use a lot of portable artistic expressions that affect the feeling of the child, the purposeful work on them makes the student's speech attractive, bringing it closer to their colloquial literary language.

4. Work on newly emerging word meanings. Such words are rarely used in textbooks. When such words are worked under the rubric of "well known", separating those related to the life of children, the speech of the reader develops in times with time.

5. Introduction to the meaning of grammatical terms. First of all, the correct pronunciation, spelling of grammatical terms are taught. After that, on the basis of examples, its content will open. By teaching the rule and performing exercises, a full-fledged understanding of the meaning of the term is achieved.

When working on a dictionary, the following methodological methods are used:

1. Comparison of word meanings and their interpretation. This method is used when interpreting words and phrases with a portable meaning, paronym words, the meaning, spelling, pronunciation of the same words in shape. War-War: the quarrels of two people –beat; the battle between two peoples, two states-War. The pronunciation of these words is also ambivalent.

2. Teaching the spelling, meaning and pronunciation of words through the method of observation of words. This method is used in the process of learning related words, when teaching the subtleties of meaning, spelling, pronunciation of the qualities of blue, white, crimson (red, white, blue). For example: flower: they observe the composition of floral, floral, flowery, floral, without flowers. These words interpret the difference in meaning and begin to realize that language becomes richer at the expense of new words. In such a position, the teacher must say that it is the student's duty to learn to think clearly by turning words into his own word. the transfer method is also used in the study of the spelling of words whose forms are changing:

mouth+im-my mouth, sister+im-my sister, u+ga-to her.

3. Method of grouping words according to their characters. Grouping is a method of mental activity that is important in increasing the vocabulary of students in their native language training. This method allows you to distinguish the meaning of words, such as category, making, spelling, slot.

Grouping is related to the method of observation and comparison. To Group words, they are first observed, then compared. In the process, their similarities and differences are distinguished:

For example, people-grouping by kinship:

1. Father's seed: father, uncle, uncle, dad, white, grandmother, grandmother.
2. Mother seed: mother, aunt, uncle, bear, grandmother, grandmother.

In adjectives a) characteristic denoting quality: cheerful, heavy, clumsy, intelligent, irrational, imaginary, imperceptible, anxious, lazy, lazy, working, hardworking, etc. b) quality denoting taste: sweet, bitter, sour, taxir, salty, tasty, bland, chuchmal, etc. Grouping can be organized in a competitive manner. A list of words in a given guru's work can also be written alphabetically.

The following assignments can be used in grouping.

1. Make a dictionary of the name of children's games.
2. Make a list of poet names you know.
3. Make a list of fairy tale names.
4. Make a list of place names.
5. Make a list of consonant words.
6. Make a list of meaningful words.

These are organized depending on the subjects studied, the texts of the exercise. An Explanatory Dictionary of words is organized depending on the texts of the class and school. An Explanatory Dictionary of words can be compiled on a class and school scale, hung and included in the general list. "Readers' mail " is organized. When students have difficulty finding out which word they mean, they write that word down and throw it into the crate. In the lesson at the end of the week, an explanation of the meaning, spelling of these words is held.

When working with a dictionary in the first grade, the following goals are set:

- Building the foundations of educational and cognitive motivation.
- Special Book – interest in vocabulary.

From these goals, it is envisaged to carry out the following tasks:

1. Readers should know that in the dictionary words are arranged according to the principle of the alphabet according to the first letter.

2. Readers should be able to find the word from the dictionary by looking at its first letter.

In the first grade, work with a dictionary is carried out with the help of a teacher at the imitation stage, depending on the finished sample, in part by specifying a dictionary page at the stage of independent work.

When to start working with a spelling dictionary in the first grade? Specialist in the teaching methodology of the Russian language olima L. N. Kalinina believes that the skill of working with vocabulary should be started from the first steps of the student in school, from the lessons of literacy.

Taking into account the strength of interest in knowledge activities, methods in young schoolchildren, it is necessary to use various interesting methods, educational games, competition elements when working with a dictionary.

The introduction of the dictionary into the lesson begins with a large tay-Yorkist work on mastering the alphabet of the Uzbek language. Here is an example of games aimed at completing this task.

We give an example of assignments that demonstrate the use of a spelling dictionary as a dictionary-reference.

Class 1. Task 1. Read the first 10 words in the dictionary, which letter begins bi-lan? What letter do the last 10 words start with?

Task 2. Determine from the dictionary which letter is written at the end of the words school, office, Free, hope.

Using a spelling dictionary as a dictionary-textbook.

Task 3. Write down the dictionary by finding 5 words in which the smoke symbol is present.

Task 4. (Although studying the topic" capitalization of place names") write the name of the 5 main cities of Uzbekistan and 5 aso-siy rivers using the appendix in the dictionary.

The purpose of working with a dictionary in the second, third grade is complicated:

Raising the need to refer to vocabulary in children.

Tasks: 1. Readers should know the principle of placing words not only according to the first letter, but also according to the next letter.

2. Readers can find the word from the dictionary according to the first, second letter ke-rak.

3. When checking orthograms, it is necessary to develop the ability to work independently and self-check. The work is carried out in part at the stage of independent work and self-tapping.

In the 2nd grade, the following tasks can be used to work with a spelling dictionary:

Task 1. (In addition to exercise 20, given on the topic" vowel sounds and letters "in the textbook" mother tongue". In the exercise, " read the words by placing the dropped letters a and o in place of the dots. The exercise gives the following words: S...bzi, b...dring, kar...m, q...Woon, k...rt...shka, t...rvuz, sh...lg...m, h...nd...lak, l...vl...gi, PG...v...q). Check the words you write from the dictionary.

In the 3rd grade, the following tasks can be used to work with a spelling dictionary:

Task 1. Find the word mint in the dictionary. What word came before him? What after him? Why? Experience shows that non-standard, problematic assignments arouse interest in the lesson even in passive training.

Task 2. The game "shop of difficult words" (to the theme "horse"). Readers are divided into" sellers "and"buyers". The first group selects words from the dictionary that refer to a specific mav-zu ("vegetable", "fruit", etc. Children in the second group receive words and write using a dictionary by placing the letters left down. For example, vegetables: k...rt...shka, p...midor, tur..., sa...zi, q...wok.

Task 3 (to the theme" horse"). Find and write down 10 words that are the answer to what is asked from the section of the letter t in the spelling dictionary. For example, students write the following words: Nature, tanbur, tandir, millet, comb, scales, board, coin, vacation, TV. By completing the task, students learn how to find the desired word from the dictionary and interrogate words, and learn how those words are written.

Task 4. (To the theme of "quality-making supplements"). Make and write an adjective by adding the suffix-q to the words of Sovi, quri. Check the wording you wrote from the dictionary. What sound change has occurred in the core of words?

In the 3rd grade, the spelling dictionary can also be used to write a tekshrish dictation. After writing the dictation, the teacher gives the task:"correct your letter by checking the spelling dictionary of words that you may have written an error in the dictation." Such an assignment will teach the reader to spelling sensitivity and self-tapping.

The purpose of working with a spelling dictionary in Grade 4 is as follows::

1. Introduction of the use of vocabulary into the system of everyday affairs in native language lessons, the system of working on an essay, statement.

2. Formation of self-examination skills

In the 4th grade, the following tasks can be used to work with a spelling dictionary:

Task 1. (To the theme of" the use of horses with possessive suffixes"). By adding the possessive suffix to the following words, write in two groups depending on whether a sound change has occurred: wrist, wish, behavior, participation, spring, morality, erk, Vine, difference, people, right, achievement.

To complete this task, Sh. Rakhmatullayev and A. He will have to refer to the part of the spelling dictionary compiled by Hajiyev, which is given the "basic spelling rules of the Uzbek language". In this, paragraph 34 in the section" spelling of bases and suffixes "States: "when a possessive suffix is added to multi-syllable words born with the exclamation K, Q, as well as certain monolingual words such as Beck, no, K exclamates to the consonant g and is written as: tilak-tilaging, bek-begi. But when a possessive suffix is added to a multi-syllable plural, the vowel k, q is actually pronounced and written: erk – erki, my right".

Students write words based on the rule as follows: wrist, wish, spring, achievement; behavior, participation, morality, erki, toki, difference, people, right.

In this case, the spelling dictionary acts as a tutorial.

Task 2. (To the theme of "quality-making supplements"). Find and write 5 adjectives made with Ser-, be - suffixes from the spelling dictionary, mark the core and suffix of the words.

The richer and more developed a person's vocabulary, the richer his speech; the wider opportunity is created for a clear and expressive statement of his own opinion. Therefore, the wealth, variety, mobility of the dictionary is an important condition for the successful cultivation of speech in the methodology. The current Uzbek literary language has a huge vocabulary wealth. The five-volume "annotated Dictionary of the Uzbek language" gives more than 80,000 words and syllables, which are common uses. This is followed by the words given in various terminological dictionaries published in the Uzbek language, synonyms, antonyms, phraseological dictionaries and various explanatory dictionaries, the vocabulary wealth increases by another thousand or thousands. In addition to these, a lot of words mean a lot. For example, the same annotated dictionary gives the use of the word head in a sense linked to more than 40 basic and phraseologism. One of the important tasks of growing speech at school is to improve the work on the dictionary, organize, distinguish and substantiate its main directions, and control the process of enriching the vocabulary of students.
